Division of Advancement

Director of Development (Research) – Salary commensurate with experience

Open until filled

The mission of the Division of Advancement is to increase the level of private support in order to sustain the quality and competitiveness of UNT's programs focused on student success, strengthen alumni traditions and networks, and build and sustain long-term relationships that advance the reputation and visibility of the University.

The Division of Advancement is seeking a Director of Development for Research. This position serves as a strategic leader for prospect and relationship research for the central development office, schools, and colleges. The incumbent will analyze, plan and implement research methods, techniques and procedures; direct staff in the identification and assessment of prospects, the rating of prospects, assist in the development of cultivation and solicitation strategies, and assist with special projects. If you are interested in joining a dynamic development environment with many new and exciting initiatives, we invite you to apply at <https://jobs.unt.edu> , requisition # 100682. UNT is an AA/EOE employer.
